Avatar Adi Da Samraj: Fear-No-More Zoo is one of the Sacred places in this community. Feel what its particular components are. The more I get to do what I intend there, the more you will observe it. But even as it is, as simple as it is, it immediately awakens a certain congenial disposition in you, if you go down there sensitively, of course. It's another place of worship, a kind of walking, petting worship. It awakens compassion for all living beings, just being down there. And a feeling of non-"difference", of Unity. I spend a lot of time around non-humans. To Me, they are the same as human beings—in the ultimate sense, the same. I do not imagine them being lowly or separate, or different in any sense whatsoever.

And that's what you should realize when you go there. That's how you should use it, to support your sadhana. All the places of the Ashram are Sacred, have a special meaning, purpose, and significance, a special purpose. And the zoo is one of them. It's about "fearing no more", about going beyond the knot of separate self, being in the condition of the samadhi of Communion with Me, and, at the level of form, feeling structured in a Great Unity...

Fear-No-More Zoo is a sign that My Work extends beyond human beings. It provides Me with a point of contact with non-human beings, but also represents a sign to others of the fullest extension of My Work.
